Details...

COTM and Community Groups are proud to offer the 6th Annual COTM Computer Football League through ESPN.com. If you're unfamiliar with the concept, here's how it works. Everyone will be divided into divisions of approximately 10 people. Those 10 people take turns drafting current NFL players to be on their teams. We will have a lottery draft to determine the draft order. This is a "snake style" draft (meaning the person with 10th pick will also be picking the 11th pick and so on). Once the NFL season begins, your team will be matched up against another team in your division every week. The stats of your players will be tallied up according to what they did on the field that week. The point system awards players a certain number of points for yards gained, touchdowns scored, tackles, made field goals, etc. Those points are added up at the end of the week and if your team scored more points than your opponent, you get the win.

We will be keeping track of all of the teams in the CFL. At the end of the year, the winner of each league will win the division title, including a Gift Card and bragging rights for the entire year. Fantasy football beginner's and veterans are all welcomed.

The CFL will require that you be able to access the internet to make trades, pick-up free agents, set your starting line-ups, etc. Weekly updates and other vital information will also be sent out through email from time to time from your league commissioner. If you do not have an email account, you will need to get one before you sign-up for CFL.

What you need...

- A computer, or access to a computer at some point throughout the week
- An email address
- Internet access to set your weekly line-ups

What's provided...

At the live draft on September 2nd we will provide each participant with a list of players from ESPN at each position and their rankings based on projected stats for the 2010 Season. You may use this information as a guideline. You will also be provided with a copy of the league settings, starting positions, and scoring system, as well as some great fellowship and food. We're looking forward to seeing you there.
